Little Red Riding hood

Once there was a timonid, little cottage
Upon the vast wilderness, Outside lay a garden it was small ✓
not even fit to have a grand hall.

In that timonid little cottage was a young girl called Little red Riding hood,
She had a fear of the woods,
although she could complete it wearing all her hoods.

One windy, foggy morning her mother said,
"Go to Grandma and give her ^{eggs} ~~eggs~~."

Her mum blew her a splendid kiss, ✓ but Little Red Riding hood let out a ear-shattering his: ✓

Off she went far in the forest until ~~in~~ a gruesome wolf he said "Where are you off to little girl?", "Grandma at the edge off the forest!" ✓
She picked up flower lots of things including flowers ✓
It felt like it to 5 hours. ✓

Finally she arrived at the modern cobbled tudor house, to find ~~at~~ the door ajar
She walked in and saw a mess!
It wasn't Grandma's ~~best~~ ✓

She walked towards the bed and saw grandma preciously huffy body and said, "Oh what big eyes you have," a hoarse voice bellowed; "All the better to ~~see~~ see his pies!" ✓
